Narrative

Overall, the presenter received positive feedback from participants. Many of the respondents stated that the entire training had helpful information and was presented well when asked what information was most helpful. Some others responded that they liked: Affordable Health Care Act; insight on the system and changes that are occurring; information on the Wayne County CMH Authority; the comparison between adolescents and adult co-occurring behaviors; working with and engaging youth that are substance abusers; current and future projections in the MH field; the video.

Information cited as least helpful included: the video feed; would have liked more specific information on interventions to treat youth with co-occurring disorders.

Participants indicated they will use the information to: provide information to my families that I work with; use for resources; share this information with coworkers; technical assistance to service providers; advocate for mental health treatment for children; assist clients in navigating the new mental health structure for Wayne County.

Participants also indicated that they will use information provided to make changes in their current practice in the following ways: focus additional information on the ROSC to provide a context for increasing understanding of co-occurring youth; seek additional training regarding individuals with co-occurring disorders; prepare my private practice to provide and integrated care approach.

Future training topics suggested by the participants included: ASD; DSM-V; family interventions; HIV trainings; research on diagnosing ADHD with blood tests; engaging families; pain and psychotropic drugs; personality disorders; EBP's for co-occurring JJ and implementation; teen sexuality.

Participants were asked whether the presentations were fair, balanced, and free of commercial bias. 100% ( $n=47$ ) indicated agreement with the statement. 0.0% ( $n=0$ ) disagreed.

Participants were asked if they chose to attend this VCE training to fulfill their requirements for continuing education licensure, CMHP and/or QMHP. 92.0% ( $n=46$ ) responded with "yes" and 8.0% ( $n=4$ ) responded "no".
